2020 Institute for Excellence in Education (IEE)

Summer Teaching Camp

Thursday, July 9 – Friday, July 10, 2020

Respect, Teamwork and Civility: Inspiring Personalized Mentoring Relationships

The Institute for Excellence in Education (IEE), in conjunction with the Office of Faculty, is happy to announce that 2020 Summer Teaching Camp will be all “virtual.” We will use Zoom for sessions. We have an exciting program planned with an interactive and engaging learning experience, small and large group activities, discussions and networking.

★ Foundations of Teaching and Learning will be repeat Thursday and Friday mornings, limited to 35 participants to create a positive online learning experience. Participants only attend one morning, selecting the day that works best for them.

★ Each afternoon will have different lunchtime forums and a series of workshops: Addressing Microaggressions in the Learning Environment, Online Teaching and Learning, and Visual Thinking Strategies.

Full time JHU faculty can still utilize their tuition remission benefits, and Hopkins SOM students, residents, fellows and post doc attend for free. Registrants can sign up for one or 1 ½ days.

Thank you for your understanding and we are looking forward to offering 2021 Teaching Camp live and in person!
